Editor's Note

Happy Anniversary to Beckett DBZ Collector!

In the world of Dragon Ball there are hundreds of characters, hundreds of episodes and thousands of products for DB, DBZ and DBGT fans to enjoy. It would take years to study them all and yet there still might be something everyone would miss. That's where we, Beckett Dragon Ball Z Collector, come into play. We created this magazine exactly one year ago this month and we're certainly glad we did. There is so much to see and talk about it almost makes my head spin. Each month we've been covering the character's backgrounds in the Z Files, DBZ Web sites in DBZ Online, tips and tricks for playing the DBZ CCG game in DBZ Rulez, DBZ Trivia, price guides to all DBZ products, Hot Lists of the hottest DBZ products, fan art, DB/DBZ/DBGT contests and tons more. It's mind-boggling to think how many fans are out there who, like me, absolutely love Dragon Ball. We're always looking for cool and new features and ideas to improve our magazine and Web site. Without the help of you, the fans, we would be nowhere! Inside this issue we've included another great lineup of DBZ fun you've come to expect from Beckett. However, we're always looking to get better. Perhaps you'd like to see a particular DBZ subject covered that we haven't done yet. Or maybe there are some nice prizes you'd like to win that we haven't given away yet. If you have an idea for something you would like to see in our magazine or Web site, let us know as soon as you can (our e-mail is dbz@beckett.com). Then we can include some of your suggestions for future issues. Plus, you can also help us by filling out our Super Saiyan Survey at the back of each issue.

By the way, since this is the issue we have to report our statement of ownership, management and circulation business mumbo-jumbo, we squished it in at the bottom of this page. Yeah, it takes up some room where a nice cool image of S.S.Goku or Gohan could be, but it's a requirement by the Red Ribbon Army, err, I mean United States Postal Service.

So, sit back in your chair, go through every page of our magazine and let us know what you think. We always appreciate your feedback!

Peace!

Dragon Ball Movie Reviews

By Greg Werner

Three Dragon Ball Movies, thirteen Dragon Ball Z Movies, three TV Specials, and a 10th Anniversary Dragon Ball Movie! Wow! That's a lot of popcorn! In Japan, whenever Dragon Ball Z movies were released, it was a major event! Contests even ran on the TV show that gave away tickets to lucky fans! With so many out there, you're probably wondering which Dragon Ball movies are worth your bucks. Well look no further! Here we'll tell you all you need to know about the movie and then let you know if it deserves a spot in your Dragon Ball collection. And now, we ask that you refrain from talking during the show. Exits are located on your left and right. Should anyone bother with your enjoyment of the production, please let our usher Vegeta know and he'd be happy to "escort" the disturbance out of the theater. Now please sit back and enjoy the show!

Dragon Ball Z Movie 7: American Name: Unknown at this time

"The Three Super Saiya-jin" (Japan)

Original Release Date: July 11th 1992

SUMMARY:

Dr. Gero left more than scraps and bolts lying around after 17 and 18 killed him. One wonders what happened to Gero's other creations, those before Artificial Human 16 and after Artificial Human 8. This movie strives to answer those questions when Artificial Humans 13, 14 and 15 enter the scene with a bang, (quite a few bangs actually). What was once a normal shopping day for Goku is ruined when two, "...guys with the personality of robots" show up and start tearing a bustling city into pieces, searching for Goku. Finally, Goku makes contact with the characters and it becomes evident that they are Artificial Humans 15 and 16. Not wanting to risk hurting civilians, Goku jets off to an arctic region to do battle with them. Not long into the fight, Android 13 shows up and makes the battle a tough one. Luckily Piccolo, Trunks and Vegeta show up to help, while Frieza and Gohan watch the ferocious battle. Goku, 13, Vegeta battles 15, and Trunks tackles 16. However, when the going gets tough, the Artificial Humans just keep going and going and going. Trunks and Goku all transform into Super Saiyans and respectively defeat their opponent, except for Goku. At this point, Android 13 sees that he's outnumbered and pulls a drastic move. Absorbing specific chips and mechanisms from his comrade's torn bodies; he becomes an upgraded version of himself, which is, to say the least, an understatement. His entire body becomes a massive bulk of blue and steel, with bright orange hair and a vicious attitude. Try as they might, the Z Soldiers can't even dent him. Goku resorts to his most powerful move, and with better teamwork from the Z Soldiers than ever seen before in a movie, a rather unlikely form of the Spirit Bomb defeats Android 15. The world is safe again...for now.

The Three Super Saiya-Jin

REVIEW:

This is where it starts! From this point on, (excluding DBZ Movie 11), the rest of the DBZ Movies are really great. It's tough to find many faults in them, so I'm going to have to be a stricter grader! Let's start with villains. This is the only thing I'm not crazy about in this movie. Granted Artificial Human 15 rocks! He's just so...weird! But Android 16's look is cliché as he could pass for any normal tough-guy from the series. Android 13's first form is...um...rustic I suppose. I call him "Farmer Joe". His upgraded form is interesting and threatening, but even Coola was uh cooler. The fights are well done, and the movie makes a big deal about there being three Super Saiyans at once. It's a bit cheesy, but not in a bad way! The high point of the movie is definitely the final assault on Artificial Human 13. Everyone works as a team! Instead of simply: dying, passing out, giving Goku their power, the Z Soldiers all help prevent Android 13 from attacking Goku while he creates the Spirit Bomb. And it even has great quotes! Like this one from Trunks, "Hey! Artificial Human! I come from 20 years in the future. And I can tell you that you don't exist, because Son Goku defeats you here and now!!" Golden! This is not a movie to miss!!!

The Good, The Bad & the

What would Dragon Ball Z be without its line-up of intense characters? The series' backbone lies within each character's individual personas, not to mention their personal strengths and weaknesses. Each character has a distinct personality, and after watching the show for a while, you'll come to know the character, as you would a close friend... or perhaps an enemy. Which is why, in this section, we will tell you a little bit about each character so you can get to know them even better than you already do.

Tenkaichi Budoukai Announcer

Shocked by this month's pick for the "good guy" character profile? You shouldn't be; the Tenkaichi Budoukai Announcer, although never even given an official name, is one of the most interesting and key characters in the series. Many fans of US DBZ are not familiar with him because of the lack of World Martial Arts Tournaments that take place during the series, but the 25th Tenkaichi Budoukai, which kicks off the Boo Saga, should already have begun airing on TV as of this printing. He seems like another background character, when he's something much more.

The Tenkaichi Budoukai Announcer (who we will now refer to as TBA) is one of the few normal humans that know what really happened on the day of the Cell Game. He tells Goku that he always guessed it wasn't Mr. Satan that defeated Cell. He's been an announcer in the series since the 21st Tenkaichi Budoukai, which took place in 750 AD on May 7th. He has always enjoyed Goku's presence at the games, because of the excitement he brought back to the event. He remarks on one occasion how Goku is partially responsible for making the event so very famous after his performance at the 23rd Tenkaichi Budoukai. He's a courageous fellow, along the lines of the reporter from the Cell Game. He's willing to stick around and cover the action, even if no one's listening, or if everyone.... say for example.... evacuates the island when they find out the competitor is the "reincarnation" of Piccolo Daimaou. Although very young and incredibly handsome at the 21st Budoukai, Toriyama realistically ages TBA, (as he does with almost every character), and late in the series he grows a mustache and starts to bald.

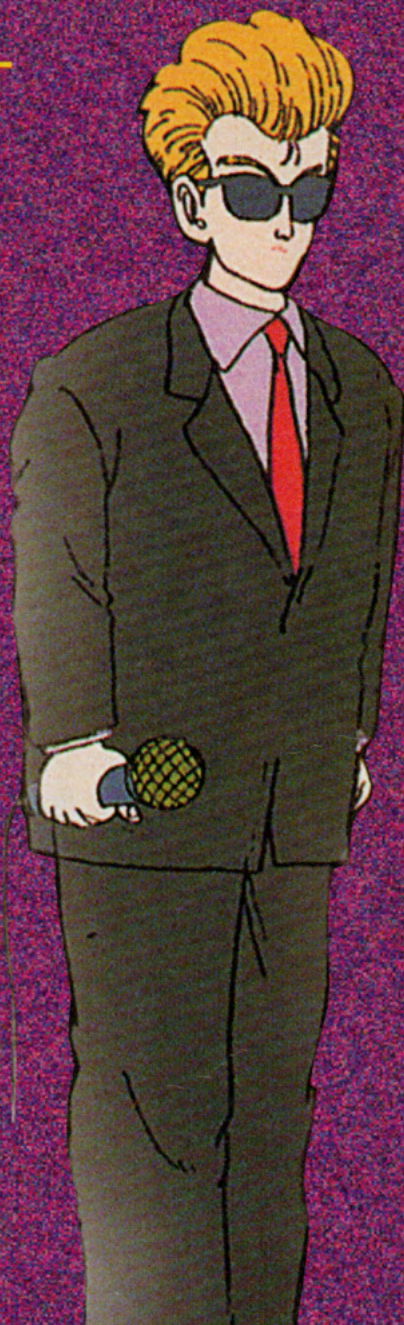

With his trusty microphone, catchy phrases and a suave voice, TBA performs one of the most exciting jobs in the world, reporting the events of battles that could, (and does at one point), destroy an entire island... hey, no one ever said it was easy!

Race: Human

Age: Unknown

Family: Unknown

Special Talents: He's quick thinking and has a great voice!

Red Leader

When was the last time someone shorter than most large dogs intimidated you? Well prepare to be terrified by the world's most militant midget, Red Leader! The founder of the Red Ribbon Army, Red Leader's organization causes suffering wherever it goes, on the search for the Dragon Balls.

So what is it that Red Leader really wants? What evil and horrific wish could he possibly have up his sleeve? Endless war? World domination? Or something worse... Nope, he just wants to be taller. That's right, in a classic Toriyama comedic twist, in the climax of Goku's assault on the Red Ribbon home base, Red reveals to his servant, Mr. Black that his wish was to be taller. This sets off an interesting chain of events that create a spectacular final battle, something we won't spoil for you here!

Red Leader, unbeknownst to the viewer/reader, (and probably Akira Toriyama at the time), created a terrible menace, and left a deadly legacy in the form of a doctor, a mad Dr. Someone we know as Dr. Gero. Gero's connections with Red Leader are vague, but a few assumptions can be made based on clues. Dr. Gero most likely never learned of Red Leader's true ambition, and obviously had a strong connection to him, otherwise, why would he have spent so many years building creations, not to mention depositing his brain into a robot, simply in order to destroy Goku? Although he seems to have a small desire for conquering the Earth, his hatred towards Goku is definitely not the norm.

Every leading member of the Red Ribbon Army had a name that went along with a type of color. Yellow Commander, Blue Shogun, Violet Commander, etc. This is just another one of Toriyama's clever name puns. Why colors? The world may never know.

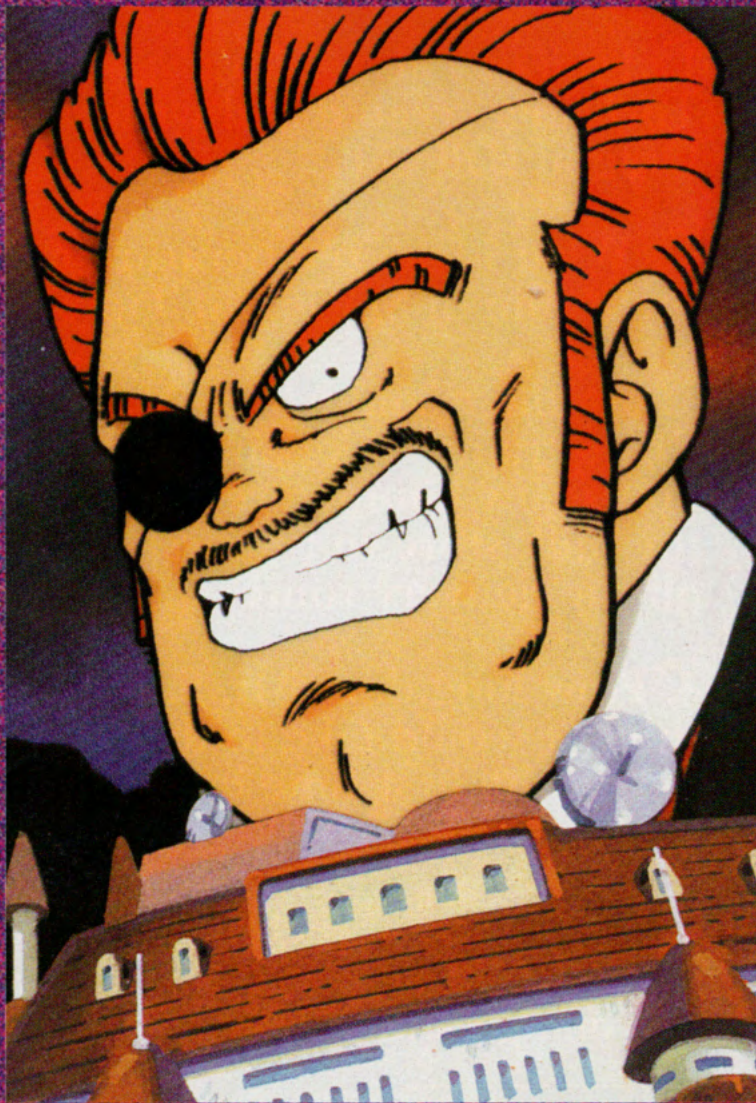

Race: Human

Age: Unknown

Henchmen: The Red Ribbon Army!

Special Skills: Leadership (whether it's good or bad is your choice)

Whoops! Last month Baby was listed as a Demon! That was Garlic Jr, not Baby! Baby is obviously a Tuffle! Gomen nasai. We're very sorry! ★

THEY Said it!

DBZ voice actors speak out.

BY DOUG KALE

artbox International, manufacturers of the popular Dragon Ball Trading Cards, recently set up a second DBZ voice actor autograph signing at FUNimation's studios in Forth Worth, Texas. Once Beckett Publications heard about the signing, we made sure Beckett DBZ Collector was there to cover it.

The voice actors who attended this event were: Sean Schemmel, the voice of Goku and King Kai; Chris Sabat, the voice of Piccolo, Vegeta, Mr. Popo, Kami, Yamcha, Jeice, Guru, Raditz, Recoome, and Zarbon; Tiffany Vollmer, the voice of Bulma; Josh Martin, voice of Majin Buu; and Chris Rager, voice of Hercule.

Since this was our second time interviewing Sean and Chris Sabat, we decided to ask them some questions that our Beckett DBZ readers had sent us. And, given that this was our first interview with Tiffany, Josh and Chris Rager, we decided to ask them many of the questions we posed Schemmel and Sabat in our first interview. The voice actors were very happy to answer any of our questions and everything just turned out great! Here's what they said.

Beckett: Where or how did you come up with the voice of your character?

Tiffany Vollmer (signing Bulma cards): She is a higher pitched whiney version of me.

Josh Martin (signing Majin Buu cards): They told me cute and evil. So I did Pillsbury Doughboy and Psycho.

PHOTOS BY MARK BREWER

Chris Rager (signing Hercule cards): I combined Jesse "The Body" Ventura and Randy "Macho Man" Savage.

Beckett: Were you a fan of DBZ or Anime before you started working for the cartoon?

Chris R: Some, but only of my Hercule!

Beckett: What's one thing most fans don't know about your character?

Tiffany: Bulma is the longest living character on the show.

Josh: He's not everything he seems to be.

Chris R: He wears women clothes under his Gi.

Many of our readers who read our first interview with Sean and Chris Sabat also had some other questions that they wanted answered. So, here are some of their questions:

Beckett: What's your favorite DBZ saga?

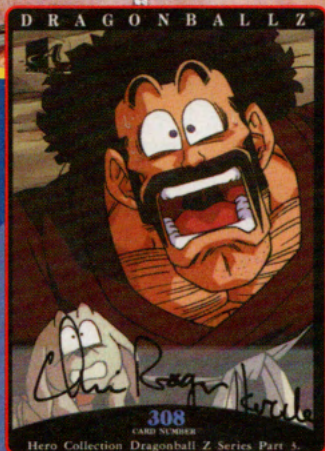

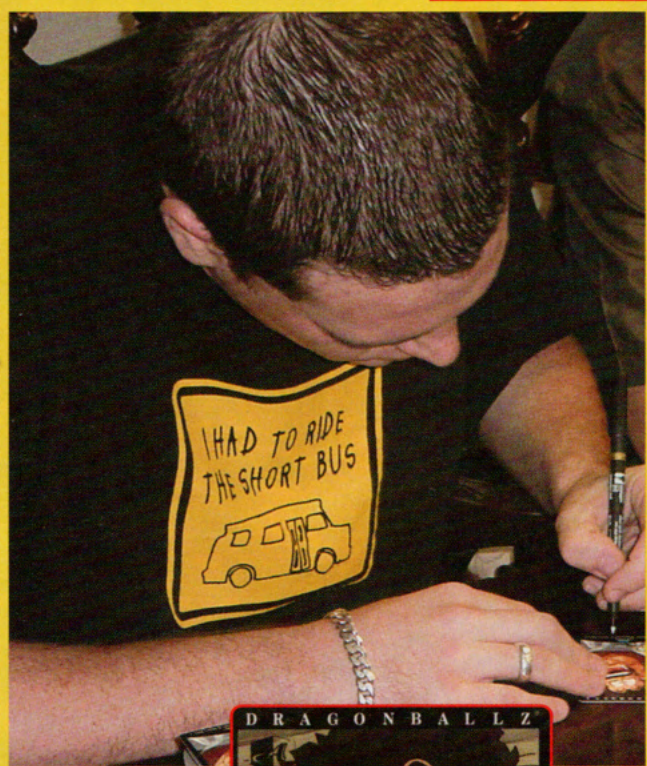

Chris Sabat (signing Vegeta cards): Android Saga is my favorite because it's a much more complicated Saga. It has a more interesting storyline.

Sean Schemmel (signing Goku cards): Great Saiyaman Saga is my favorite. I love it when you see Gohan going to high school.

Beckett: What's your favorite DBZ episode or scene?

Chris S.: I like episodes 243 to 245 and I like the scene in Movie 5 with the sub servants under Cooler. They have the most interesting voices I've ever heard.

Sean: I like the episode where Goku meets Goten for the first time. I also like the Piccolo fight scene from Lord Slug.

Beckett: What's your favorite food?

Masteries, Fighting Styles, and Tokui-Waza

Give your Main Personality a kick, with a Tokui-Waza!

Part 2: Tokui-Waza

Welcome to Part Two of this three-part article, Masters, Colors, and Tokui-Waza. In this section, you will learn about how the many different colors can come to your advantage in casual game play or in a local tournament. Let's get started!

Tokui-Waza

The Dragon ball Z Game offers a way to add new

Energy Attack, and may not have the required power stages to perform it.

Claiming a Tokui-Waza is simple; first you must have just one fighting style in your deck, so that means not any cards of different color, or heritage (Saiyan or Namekian). At the beginning of the match, after both players have set their power levels, and put their decks into place, state this:

"I declare the black Tokui-Waza." Or any other color/style that you prefer. One of the most common problems in some decks is that they will have one or two cards that do not match their Tokui-Waza, and if a judge were to catch that in a tournament, that player would be disqualified. So be careful when picking out cards for your deck.

Next Month

Be sure to check out next month's issue of Beckett Dragon Ball Z Collector for Part Three of this DBZ Rulez feature article! ★

Cards that Help

Since the release of the Androids Saga, there have been many cards that benefit having a Tokui-Waza better than anything else. Many cards will do damage or have an effect, but the few cards that feature the "If you declared Tokui-Waza..." text can really increase your winning chances.

Here are a few of the common and uncommon cards that feature that important note:

- Black Draining Aura
- Blue Foot Smash
- Blue Glare Attack
- Blue Sidestep
- Blue Battle Readiness
- Black Power Up
- Namekian Elbow Smash
- Orange Aura Drill

DBZ Reader's Picks

An Overflowing E-mail Box of Goodies

When I asked for readers to send in the URLs of their favorite Dragon Ball web sites, I received two different kinds of responses. Some readers wrote in to suggest a site they had found by surfing the web. Many others wrote to promote web pages they had created themselves.

Of these pages, some were great, others had gotten off to good starts, but needed a lot more work. Creating any web site can be hard, but running a DBZ site can turn into a full time job! One reader sent me an address, but by the time I went to visit it, the site's author had gone back to school after the summer ended, and left a note saying he had given up on it because it was "too hard."

Often, the best way to produce a terrific set of web pages is to get a group of friends together so each person can help out with a particular part of the site.

Sites to Visit

A fine example of a group site is The Eighth Dragon Ball (<http://www.angelfire.com/dbz/8thDragonBall/>), a promising site that has a listed crew of over twenty people! Some of the links are incomplete, but more seems to be added every day. There are nifty DBZ songs and poems, fan art and comics, and a fun "adoption center" where visitors can write in and adopt what I can only describe as "cute" DBZ characters.

Trunks and Goku's DBZ site (<http://www.geocities.com/trunksand-gokurpg2001>) features a sharp looking opening page, but that is all the page's creators have done so far. A link to "enter the RPG" simply takes you to a public chat room, where, I suppose, readers are supposed to start playing against whoever is there. There are some rudimentary rules and character bios, but much of the site is incomplete. Still, I am hoping that the creators of the site don't give up, and fulfill the promise shown so far. Perhaps we'll pay a visit there again someday and see how the site is shaping up.

The Dragon Ball Z/GT RPG site (<http://www.angelfire.com/rpg/DBZdimensions>) is a creation of "Haven Blackmore," a familiar name on many other DBZ role-playing game sites. Of course, there are so many Dragon Ball RPG sites on the net that if you tried to visit them all, you'd never have a chance to play a game! However, this particular site is worth visiting, just to read the clever character descriptions of the current crop of players. You'll find the rules here are a bit more complex and imaginative than the average run of the mill RPG sites. These folks take their DBZ role-play seriously!

The Eighth Dragonball

DBZ-CT RPG

One site sent to me that was a treat to visit was The Frieza Shrine (http://geocities.com/thegreatdbzwebsites/frieza_shrine.html). "The Great Frieza," who runs this site, is a student from the Netherlands. However, the pages are available in both Dutch and English, and the English is pretty well written. This may be the best Frieza shrine page ever put together, with lots of interesting artwork and a solid sense of page layout. The pages show a genuine admiration for the character, ter, and the author offers this explanation:

"Why on Earth didn't I choose Vegeta, Goku or any other of the more popular DBZ characters? Well, there are several reasons for me to choose for that white, egoistic alien. I guess my main reason to choose him, was because that in my home country, Holland, they had just started airing DBZ. It was on for about two months, and who was the main and most powerful character at that moment: right. A white and purple villain with a cute woman-like voice called Frieza. Everyone was frightened by Frieza at that time. Only the utterance of his name strikes fear into the hearts of everyone out there, including Vegeta and Goku. His power level was so immense, that Goku had to go SSJ before he even had a slight chance to defeat him! Now that's what I call cool!"

Among the Readers Picks sent to me was one amazing treasure: Lost Files - the Tenshinhan & Lunch Shrine (<http://lostfiles.cjb.net> and five other mirror site addresses listed there!). Site creator Lady Tien put forward a fascinating account of what her shrine site is all about:

"A three eyed strong warrior and a psychotic woman with a split personality: Tenshinhan and Lunch, the oddest and most unknown couple in Dragon Ball. Lost Files wants to be a tribute to them and a source for information, pictures and fan works for every fan of the couple (me included, Lady Tien, T/L worshipper #1)."

The site pulls out a unique story from the

I only want your happiness, knowing I can never be yours to share it

pages of the original manga comic books and both the Dragon Ball and Dragon Ball Z cartoon series. The story is a sum greater than its parts: an almost unbelievable romance between strange beings. Choice dialogue is excerpted, oddly enough translated from Italian and French versions of the series! The family tree is carefully analyzed and a thorough timeline puts it all together. The site features a lot of well-written fan fiction featuring the two shrine characters, as well as manga scans, anime screen captures, song lyrics, wallpapers, and a chat room.

I look forward to opening my e-mail box every day to see what new sites readers send me. If you have a good one, send it to revry@clark.net and be sure to put "DBZ Readers Picks" in the subject line so I will read it. ★

A New Season of Digimon: Digital Monsters

A new season means new Digimon. This third season is no different.

Probably the best way to start is with Takato, Rika and Henry's digital partners, so here goes.

GUILMON/GROWLMON: The Gentle Giant

Digital Partner: Takato
Level: Rookie/Champion
Group: Reptile
Type: Virus
Special Attack:
Pyro
Sphere/Pyro
Blaster &
Dragon Blade

● Probably the most important fact is Guilmon was actually created by Takato. He didn't just drop out of the sky and was presented to his partner like Digimon of the past.

● Personality-wise, Guilmon is very much like a big, innocent puppy. He's also going to get into trouble like a puppy because he doesn't know any better. Of course, most puppies aren't over five feet tall or can smash brick walls with one blow.

● While he may be a gentle creature, Guilmon is an incredible fighter. According to our sources he's even a better fighter than previous dino Digimon like Augumon and Veemon.

● The main thing is Takato has to train him. This will involve a lot of patience, wisdom and, yes, love from Takato.

● Finally, there's some very deep significance to the fact Takato made Guilmon. We'll learn a lot more about that in later episodes.

RENAMON/KYUBIMON: The Fighter

Digital Partner: Rika
Level: Rookie/Champion
Group: Animal
Type: Data
Special Attack: Diamond Storm/Fox Tail
Inferno & Dragon Wheel

● Renamon is very much like her partner Rika in that they both have big attitudes. The difference is Rika's attitude is to look for trouble. Renamon is just tough.

● Tough as she may be, Renamon is completely devoted to Rika. This is in spite of Rika not really being a very good partner.

● Rika's main problem is she thinks Digimon are on the real world to fight. As fans of the show know, that Digimon only really fight when they have to. In this case, Renamon fights only because she follows Rika's orders.

● It shouldn't be surprising that Renamon is a tad jealous of the way Guilmon and Terriermon are treated by their partners. Then again, who can blame her?

● Rika's attitude is going to hit a breaking point one of these days. When that happens don't be surprised if Renamon does some-

Your connection to the world of Digital Monsters

Terriermon got to the real world. When we first meet him, he's roaming around the city without a partner or much else. He makes the decision Henry is his digital partner.

- Unlike Rika, Henry is dead set against fighting. This is also going to cause trouble for Terriermon when fighting is the only option available.

- On the other hand, the relationship between Henry and Terriermon is very close. Terriermon gives Henry someone he can talk to about things he normally can't. You better believe Henry appreciates that.

DIGI-MODIFYING

- The third season of Digimon also brings in a new method for Digimon to upgrade themselves. Unlike Digivolving and Digi-Armor Energizing, this one is called Digi-Modifying.

- Digi-Modifying doesn't kick a Digimon up from one level to the next (like going from Rookie to Champion). Instead it supplements the Digimon has at its current level. Once, it can give a Digimon a new ability.

...y is also limited. It only lasts a short while.

- Finally, the partners initiate it through the use of Modify Cards with their new digivices.

Yu-Gi-Oh!

THE GAME

A guide to the card types and rules for playing the Yu-Gi-Oh trading card game.

Magic cards

I. RULINGS

Magic Cards can be played straight from your hand during your Main Phase. However, you cannot play any Magic cards from your hand if all 5 of your Magic/Trap slots are filled, you need at least 1 empty slot for it. A Magic Card can also be placed face down on the Field (thereby taking up one of your Magic/Trap slots) before usage. (*You may use a Magic Card on the same turn it was set on the Field.) Magic Cards can only be played during your turn (with the exception of Instant Magic). Magic Cards are discarded after use (except equipment, field and permanent magic will stay in the slot).

Various types of Magic Cards have their own Spell Speeds and they follow the Chain Rule when used to intercept other Magic/Trap Cards.

II. TYPES

The different types of Magic Cards are identified by special icons which appear below the card's name.

Normal Magic

Spell Speed: 1

These are regular Magic Cards.

Examples: LB-51 Black hole, LB-52 Thunder Bolt, LB-53 Red Potion

Equipment Magic

Spell Speed: 1

When Equipment Magic is played, it is 'attached'

(ie. equipped) to a Monster on the Field (thereby taking up 1 Magic/Trap slot of the Player who played it). When the Monster is removed from the Field, any Equipment Card attached to it will be sent to the card owner's Graveyard. If you play an Equipment Magic on your opponent's Monster, the Equipment Magic is placed in your opponent's Magic/Trap slots. You can equip 1-5 magic cards, it depends on how many empty slot left.

- # Examples: LB-39 Legendary Sword, LB-40 Wild Beast's Teeth, LB-41 Purple Crystal

Field Magic

Spell Speed: 1

This is a special type of Magic Card that is placed on the "Field Card" Slot when played.

The effects of a Field Card are active all the time and affects every card on the Field.

There can only be one Field Card in play at any one time. Field Cards remain in play until they are destroyed, or replaced by another Field Card from you or your opponent.

Examples: LB-47 Mountain, LB-48 Grassy Plains, LB-49 Sea

Permanent Magic

Spell Speed: 1

When played, Permanent Magic remains on the Field (thereby taking up one Magic/Trap slot) until their effect ends or when they are destroyed.

Instant Magic

Spell Speed: 2

Instant Magic may be played any time (from your Hand) during your Turn, including your Battle Phase. It may also be played during your opponent's turn. In order to do so, set the Instant Magic face down on the Field first before activating it during your opponent's turn (ie: as though it were a Trap card).

Ritual Magic

Spell Speed: 1

Ritual Cards are used for summoning Ritual Monsters. Each Ritual Monster requires its own unique Ritual Card to be summoned into play. Ritual Magic is played during your Main Phase.

Trap Cards

I. RULINGS

They have to be placed face down on the Field (thereby taking up one of your Magic/Trap slots) during the Main Phase before they can be used (or 'activated').

A Trap Card has to remain on the Field for at least one turn before it can be activated.

You cannot activate a Trap Card on the turn it was set on the Field or from your hand. Trap Cards can be activated during your opponent's turn. Trap Cards are discarded after use (except permanent trap card). Various types of Trap Cards have their own Spell Speeds and they follow the Chain Rule when used to intercept other Magic/Trap Cards.

II. TYPES

Normal Trap

Spell Speed: 2

These are regular Traps.

Examples: LB-57 Pitfall, LB-60 Pinsir Attack

Permanent Trap

Spell Speed: 2

When activated, Permanent Traps remain on the Field (thereby taking up one Magic/Trap slot) until their effect ends or when they are destroyed.

Examples: LB-44 Dragon-Sealing Pot

Counter Trap

Spell Speed: 3

This is a special class of Trap Cards that can be used to counter the effects of other Magic/Trap Cards.

Next Month we'll cover all the different types of monster cards.
